NEW: "SMALL" SIZE ART PHOTOS BY ANNELIES FOR CHARITY

Dear follower,

I'm with all of you in these challenging times we encounter in the world.

The art world has been hit hard. A large number of art fairs, openings, exhibitions and other events have been canceled or postponed. These events account for a large portion of sales annually and offer artists important exposure to curators and collectors.

And not only the art world has been affected but the tourism industry had come to a total standstill. And this has also reached the beautiful Island of Lamu, Kenya. One of my sanctuaries where I get inspired and come at ease in busy times. Lamu island is 100% depending on tourism and therefore many people lost their jobs and income.

Lamu Yoga Organisation and Banana House took responsibility to help the local community, especially young girls who are the most vulnerable, to overcome these hard times. They have launched a fundraising campaign to help the Shela Bright Girls Secondary School with Wellbeing Kits, which contains food and hygiene products incl. re-usable sanitation pads.

I have decided to support this initiative through the beautiful art of photography.

I will release two new photo editions from my Longing for Lamu-series. € 100,- of the sales price will be donated directly to this cause.

About: Haiba - charming

"Is this just a beautiful face, or is she like many Kenyan women, imprisoned in her house? Fortunately I know she is free to go".

About: Tafakari - contemplation

"Admiring this headstrong, attractive woman and feeling humble knowing what difficult journey she has been through".
